

Accessing forestry – information on the move

Donal Whelan

“
 The demand for responsive content at fast speeds is catered for in the website www.forestry.ie
 ”

People working in the forestry and forest products industry need to access information on their mobile phones, tablets and laptops while away from the office. The demand for responsive content at fast speeds is catered for in the website www.forestry.ie. This portal contains information on a range of forestry topics which are accessible through multiple navigation options and search facilities.

The main reference source is www.forestry.ie for the Infographic on ESSENTIAL FORESTRY APPS.

Some of the best international forestry apps for your forestry and timber business are listed on <http://www.forestry.ie/information-links/tools-gadgets>.

For the past number of years an online version of the directory has been hosted on the FORESTRY.IE website.

This online directory which has full search capability is now mobile friendly and features all directory listings in the current yearbook. Users can search for a business or service by name, category, county, town or country. Directory listings contain a location map and, where applicable, links to company website and social media accounts. The online directory is also accessible from www.itga.ie and www.forestryyearbook.ie.

All listings in this Forestry & Timber Yearbook are entered in the new online directory and full and half page advertisers in the yearbook are entered as 'Featured listings'. All featured listings have their yearbook advertisement displayed in the Gallery at the end of their listing.

www.forestry.ie – information when you need it, wherever you are.